FOR THE ASSOCIATE COMMISSIONER,
EXAMINATIONS

Robert P. Wiemann, Director
Administrative Appeals Office

DISCUSSION: The nonimmigrant visa petition was denied by the director and is now before the Associate Commissioner for Examinations on appeal. The appeal will be sustained.

The petitioner is a publishing business with 3,100 employees and a gross annual income of $17 billion. It seeks to employ the beneficiary as an editorial assistant for a period of three years. The director determined the petitioner had not established that the proffered position is a specialty occupation.

On appeal, counsel submits a brief.

Section 101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b) of the Immigration and Nationality Act (the Act), 8 U.S.C. 1101(a)(15)(H)(i)(b), provides in part for nonimmigrant classification to qualified aliens who are coming temporarily to the United States to perform services in a specialty occupation. Section 214(i)(1) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1184(i)(1), defines a "specialty occupation" as an occupation that requires theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge, and attainment of a bachelor's or higher degree in the specific specialty (or its equivalent) as a minimum for entry into the occupation in the United States.

Pursuant to section 214(i)(2) of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1184(i)(2), to qualify as an alien coming to perform services in a specialty occupation the beneficiary must hold full state licensure to practice in the occupation, if such licensure is required to practice in the occupation. In addition, the beneficiary must have completed the degree required for the occupation, or have experience in the specialty equivalent to the completion of such degree and recognition of expertise in the specialty through progressively responsible positions relating to the specialty.

The director denied the petition because the proffered position does not require the attainment of a baccalaureate or higher degree in a specific specialty. On appeal, counsel states, in part, that the proposed duties could be performed only by an individual in possession of a baccalaureate degree with a significant emphasis in English and creative writing.

The term "specialty occupation" is defined at 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(4)(ii) as:

an occupation which requires theoretical and practical application of a body of highly specialized knowledge in fields of human endeavor including, but not limited to, architecture, engineering, mathematics, physical sciences, social sciences, medicine and health, education, business specialties, accounting, law, theology, and the arts, and which requires the attainment of a bachelor's degree or higher in a specific specialty, or its equivalent, as a minimum for entry into the occupation in the United States.

Pursuant to 8 C.F.R. 214.2(h)(4)(iii)(A), to qualify as a specialty occupation, the position must meet one of the following criteria:

1. A baccalaureate or higher degree or its equivalent is normally the minimum requirement for entry into the particular position;
2. The degree requirement is common to the industry in parallel positions among similar organizations or, in the alternative, an employer may show that its particular position is so complex or unique that it can be performed only by an individual with a degree;
3. The employer normally requires a degree or its equivalent for the position; or
4. The nature of the specific duties is so specialized and complex that knowledge required to perform the duties is usually associated with the attainment of a baccalaureate or higher degree.

The duties of the proffered position are described in pertinent part as follows:

1. Plan, coordinate, and direct editorial activities.
2. Write copy for catalogues, book jackets and department meetings.
3. Supervise workers who assist in selecting and preparing material for publications in magazines, trade journals, house organs, and related publications.
4. Confer with executives, department heads, and editorial staff to formulate policy.
5. Coordinate department activities, establish production schedules, solve publication problems.
6. Discuss makeup plans and organizational changes.
7. Read, evaluate and recommend manuscripts submitted for publication.
8. Secure graphic material, permissions and rights from picture sources.

9. Assign research and other editorial duties.

10. Organize material, plan overall and individual page layout.

The proffered position appears to be similar to that of a writer or editor. A review of the Department of Labor's Occupational Outlook Handbook, 2000-2001 edition, at page 245 finds that a college degree is generally required for a position as a writer or editor. Further, on appeal, counsel states, in part, that:

...the beneficiary had obtained not only a general college degree, which would be insufficient for an H-1B classification, but she had acquired a college degree with further specification of Creative Writing/Literature/Philosophy which clearly establishes her eligibility for the requested classification...The beneficiary's degree program included an abundance of courses in creative writing and English literature which have a direct bearing on her ability to perform the duties associated with the position of Editorial Assistant.

It is noted that not all editorial assistant positions may be considered specialty occupations. Each position must be evaluated based upon the nature and complexity of the actual duties. In this instance, the duties are of such complexity as to require a baccalaureate degree in a specialized and related area. In view of the foregoing, it is concluded that the petitioner has demonstrated that the proffered position is a specialty occupation within the meaning of regulations.

The burden of proof in these proceedings rests solely with the petitioner. Section 291 of the Act, 8 U.S.C. 1361. The petitioner has sustained that burden. Accordingly, the appeal will be sustained and the petition will be approved.

ORDER: The appeal is sustained. The director's order is withdrawn and the petition is approved.
